Shitfuck followup

Posted 12.22.2003 by Dave

Back in April, just before he disappeared from the PoopReporting world completely, Mastercrapper reported on the arrest of the couple who run girlspooping.com.

Now, while our appreciation of poop couldn't be more different from their appreciation of poop, we at PoopReport nevertheless were saddened and angered at John Ashcroft's latest scheme to make the world a safer place. Yes, it's gross, but if that's your thing, so what? The actors and actresses are all consenting adults, and I'm sure that they brush their teeth after...

Nevertheless, Hero Guy sent this follow up. In spite of the First Amendment, the government still convicted our hapless dookie duo. Poor, disgusting bastards.

On Friday a federal judge sentenced the people behind an adult Website that sold defecation and urination videos and DVDs to jail terms, ending one of the first federal obscenity cases involving the Internet.

Michael J Corbett and his ex-wife Sharon Bates, who were married when running the site in question, had pled guilty to one count each of mailing obscene material in August. The Associated Press reports that U.S. District Judge David Faber on Friday sentenced Corbett to 18 months in prison, a $30,000 fine and three years of supervised release. Bates was sentenced to 13 months in prison, a $10,000 fine and three years of probation.

The couple had run the Website GirlsPooping.com, where they sold titles such as Outdoor Pooping Paradise, which showed ten women defecating outdoors, and an enema tape called Simone's Daddy's Little Girl.

You're on a public crapper. Suddenly somebody opens the door and walks in on you. Your reaction is:

Freak out and cover yourself as best as you can

Jump off the pot and slam the door in their face

Do nothing and finish the job

Ask them to take a seat and shoot the shit for a while

Depends on who the intruder is

Not my thing. Ew! But, still, I have been unable to see what law these two people broke. If someone wants to order a video of someone shitting on someone else (unless it involves kids, which is totally disgusting and wrong) they should be able to do so. Just don't show it to me!

The legislation was enforced by a man who was a religious extremist, one of those types who gives all real Christians a bad name with his fundamentalist forcefulness. I believe that the laws that these type of people pass violate the first amendment not only because of restriction of free speech, but by violation of freedom of religion. They are entirely based on the lawmakers' religious beliefs, thus forcing said religious beliefs on the rest of us.

I was a category five! Category five, I tell you! Get it right or I'll be back to PROVE IT!!!!- Katrina

Watching people pooping on each other is nasty, but some people enjoy it and should be entitled to it. I wonder how Ashcroft found out about this site?

The public has to stand up against "big brother" when he gets out of control. I don't see where any laws were broken in this matter.

Rumor has it that the Corbetts have filed motions to overturn their obscenity convictions from 2003 based on the ongoing legal arguments from Extreme Associates v. United States. For those who may be interested, this is a landmark case in which a federal judge threw out obscenity charges in 2005 as unconstitutional. This decision was later overturned by the Appeals Court, and the whole thing goes to trial in 2007. If Extreme wins, then Girlspooping.com may make a comeback.
